What should I do if my child is sucking his/her thumb?

The habit of thumb sucking can be a nightmare for most parents but it is comforting and calming for the child. Your child probably practiced this habit while in the womb and perfected it as an infant.

Should you be worried? Should you get medical help? According to the American Academy of Pediatric Dentistry, most children will stop sucking their thumb between the ages of 2 and 4. If the habit is discontinued by age 4, most children will not develop damaging concerns for their teeth or jaws until their permanent teeth begin to appear. Having said that, it is always easier to eliminate this habit when kids are younger and the habit has not become a norm for them.

The type of thumb sucking is also critical. If your child only places the thumb in his/her mouth passively, there is less damage to teeth and jaws versus if they were aggressively sucking the thumb causing a negative pressure leading to narrowing of the upper jaw. The consequences of this habit continuing into age 5 and 6 will be flared upper front teeth and/or these teeth not coming into proper position due to the constant presence of the thumb. If your child is still sucking after age 4, it is time to consider taking action

How do I help as a parent? If you identify the time your child is most likely to suck his/her thumb (sleeping, watching television, etc.) consider distracting them with a substitute activity, such as rubber ball to squeeze or a water bottle to hold on to when watching television, holding a stuff animal while going to sleep, etc. The key is to notice when and where sucking occurs and to try to divert her/his attention by offering an alternative. Praising and positive reinforcement works better than scolding. Children often suck their thumb when feeling insecure or anxious. Focus on correcting the cause of the anxiety and provide comfort to your child. If the child is older than age 5, although it becomes harder to eliminate the habit but at this age you can involve the child in actively coming up with a plan to stop the habit as a family.

It just doesn't get better than this

OUR JOB IS TO KEEP IT THIS WAY

Your city employees want to start the new year with a big Thank You for appreciating our efforts in keeping Calgary clean and green. You gave our garbage and recycling teams a 97% satisfaction rating last year.

And we'd also like to thank the City for reaffirming their commitment to keeping this service public — and saying No Thank You to a for-profit service that would have cost taxpayers 5-20% more!

inSync Listening Therapy

DeWinton Community

Julie Campbell and Dalcyce Podesky started inSync Listening Therapy in September 2015 to share their personal and professional experience with listening therapy. They have witnessed, and believe in the ability of listening therapy to improve the lives of exceptional children and their families.

Listening therapy, say Campbell and Podesky, trains the brain to process sensory, cognitive and emotional information more effectively.

Julie Campbell is an Occupational Therapist with over 23 years of experience working with children with special needs, many of these years serving families in Calgary and area including Okotoks and DeWinton. She is a trained Integrated Listening Systems practitioner and Therapeutic Listening practitioner.

Dalcyce Podesky is an experienced Educational Assistant and a trained iLs practitioner who has worked and volunteered in the Foothills and Christ the Redeemer School Divisions for over nine years and has called DeWinton home for 25 years.

inSync Listening Therapy uses holistic listening therapy approaches that are supported by evidence-based research. Validated studies show that children can make meaningful gains and achieve educational goals with the help of sound based intervention. Integrated Listening Systems (iLs) and Therapeutic Listening (TL) are the two sound therapies used by inSync, and are successfully integrated into existing therapy programs at home, in preschool, child care centres or other educational settings. They offer flexible programming in a variety of environments. While their primary focus is with children and adolescents, they also work with adults.

Campbell and Podesky say that now is an exciting time in brain research, which is providing an understanding of neurological perspectives of Autism, Attention Deficit Disorders (ADHD, ADD), Auditory Processing Disorder (APD), Sensory Processing Disorder (SPD), as well as reading and language disabilities. They believe that new perspectives and thinking are necessary to help our developing children achieve academic, social and emotional success.

Campbell and Podesky explain that sound-based therapy programs are one tool in a parent's or educator's toolbox.

Programs such as iLs and TL should be considered when supporting a child with unique learning needs. Through acoustically modified music, brain pathways are exercised to build and strengthen neurological connections. For centuries, the power of music on enhancing brain function and well-being has been recognized. The sound based interventions we use have been studied and endorsed by individuals in the medical and educational communities.

Because every child is unique, inSync Listening Therapy consults with children and their families to develop and monitor a custom listening program with a supporting sensory-motor program involving movement activities, and the program varies according to each need. Some of the changes that may occur are: improved academic performance, self-confidence and social engagement, further developed motor coordination, enhanced sleep, improved sensory processing (sound, touch, taste, body awareness, movement and functional vision), smoother transitions and better participation in daily routines, better focus and attention, and reduced stress and anxious feeling.
